PRICE FIVE CENTS.

THE LAST STRAW

That will Break the Back of all Competition.

Another Whack at the Bulls.
SENO'S PRICES DOWN 25 TO 60 PER CENT.

We have selected from each department in our store, all lots of suits of every description and price, of which we have not complete line of sizes, and—regardless of how greatly the prices may have been already reduced, we have now made a further reduction of 50 per cent to insure their immediate sale.

The very fact that there are but few of each kind left is assurance that they have met with most favor, and are the very choice styles in our stock. In the aggregate there are several hundred suits, comprising all sizes for men, boys and children, and every suit is marked below cost.

Children Teething.

My little girl had a very high fever last week and was threatening to die. I took Dr. Bigger's Southern Remedy and it worked like magic and relieved her entirely. No family should be without it. Gratefully yours,

W.M. PARKER.

The Great Attorney of the Pullman Sleeping Car Company.

Dr. Bigger's could not be better legacy than this.

For all his affections, and in all his travels he has never forgotten to take it for the relief of

Diarhœa, Dysentery and the restoration of the little ones whose system is suffering such a drain from the effect of teething.

Father!

Loss of sleep sustained in the anxiety spent in watching over little darling so slowly and fitfully waiting away for the diagnosis upon its system from the effects of teething.

We suggest that you will do well to apply to Dr. Bigger's for your child. Remedy you will have for all bowed tempers, and loss of sleep and sickness will be unknown in your house.

CHARTER OAK RANGES

Mrs. Mary D. Welch, Teacher of Domestic economy at the Lava State Agricultural College, says:

"I can make a statement command the Charter Oak Range, with the wonderful wire gauze oven door, made by the Excelsior Manufacturing Co., of St. Louis, and invented by Mr. Giles F. Filley, as the best cooking apparatus within my knowledge, and one that will not fail in any respect to give the fullest satisfaction to all who may use it."

When you look another reason is to be had for her words. Her speech and manner are simple and unaffected.
She says she feels no magnetic influence about her, and night's exertions, and has no idea what it is that makes her attractive to herself and family. She notices that the longer she practices each night the stronger her attraction becomes. She has a son, Major Pond, who was trying to convince her that she was gifted with some force, which she gazed at this, and seemed to be glad to hear it.

The persons on the stage kept apart and wrangled over her. They forced a chivalrous stand against her efforts, so it was a hard struggle, but they did so. Young Aunt, Alice Smith, and another young man with a neck like a bulldog kept her company. The two men were like the rest, they tugged and strained a long while, and then all four fell into the footlights.
The girl, however, had sixty onlookers.
The audience, in their opinions, saw the girl grip the chair; others saw her press down on it. As many more were positive that she was strong than negative, the spectators roared at her for remarks. "How did it feel?" they yelled.

"It felt a light, delicate pressure of the lady's hand," said the gallant major, perspiring as he spoke.

"What did you feel?" a reporter inquired.

"Oh, its most wonderful," said the major, "it felt like a hand of a man, but it was so light like an immense weight equally distributed over the chair. There is no magnetic or electrical force about the chair, becomes quite as it is mysterious."

Many persons, however, tried to hold a chess when she left, one hand slightly raised. He could do nothing with it, though he is an immense and powerful man. He got red and excited and then turned purple like a beet after she followed his genitiveness. The spectators roared at him for remarks. "How did it feel?" they yelled.

Pan Electric Telephone.

The telephone which is attached to the water works line—the admirable working of which has been witnessed by so many persons at the water works office, and at the clerk's office, belongs to the "Pan Electric," and not to the Georgia telephone company. Agents for other telephones are invited to bring their instruments and place them by the side of the "Pan." We have a complete line of wire to test the comparative merits of each, for long, as well as for short distances. The telephone is a great convenience to us all. We want the public to decide this question—after a fair and impartial test, and if the "Pan" does not measure up to the others, we will give up our claims and retire. For terms for state and local rights apply to G. W. Adair or J. W. Culpepper. Companies have been organized for twenty-six states.

Sunday-School Celebration.

The annual celebration of Mt. Gilde school district of Fulton county Sunday-school association will be held at the Mt. Gilde camp ground on Friday, July 14th. A fine programme has been prepared and a delightful day is anticipated. We notice some difficulty in getting the services of the judge of Judge George N. Lester, Rev. Dr. A. G. Thomas, president Fulton county Sunday-school association, who has been engaged to speak. Mr. L. L. Kinney will deliver the address of welcome.

Mt. Gilde district is celebrated for the abundance of good cheer which it always furnishes for such occasions, and it is doubtless a good place to go to. All schools in the county are cordially invited.

Delightful Picnic.

There was a delightful picnic at the country home of Captain Pearce Horne, nine miles from Dalton, on the 3d and 4th. The party was chartered by Mrs. Pearce Horne and Mrs. Uriah Horne, the latter of Griffin. Some fifteen couples left Dalton on the 6:30 a.m. train Thursday morning for Varnell station. There they took wagons for the remainder of the trip. The day was an agreeable one, with some conversation, food and music. After supper to appropriate music was indulged in pretty much all night. After a beautiful sunset, the party reached their home. The party all pronounce Mrs. Horne, as being a most charming and attentive chaperon.

The Democrats Will Win.

"Say?"
"Well?"
"I'm going to New York."
"That's good, what's up?"
"I think I have the most merciful loss-slaughter of clothing this week and next ever heard of in this country. I mean business. I must say, take my word. Come around."

The above dialogue occurred yesterday between a CONSTITUTION man and Mr. Jas. A. Bradfield, another. The two men are too well known in Atlanta to need introduction. He says he will win. The democrats are going to win, the country will be easier and everybody happy.

FULTON COUNTY'S ASSETS.

The Annual Report of TAX COLLECTOR W. W. CLAYTON.

Judge W. W. Clayton, tax collector of Fulton county, has just completed his annual settlement with the county commissioners and the commissioners of roads and revenues, for the state and county taxes for the year 1883. We take pleasure in presenting to our readers the valuable information therein contained:

PROPERTY OF FULTON.

We find the aggregate value of real and personal property in the tax district for the year 1883, to be—$28,202,051.00

AGGREGATE STATE AND COUNTY TAXES.

The state and county tax on this sum—7 cents on the $100—is $166,564.00

Besides this amount, Judge Clayton has collected taxes which were not on the digest for 1883 at all, and paid the same to the state and county treasurers, the sum of.....$1,327.93

County portion was—for general tax.....$90,246.56

for digest tax.....$1,000.00

not on digest.....4,357.30

$94,603.86

These accounts of the state and county have been closed by Judge Clayton in full, with complete statements, accompanied with proper vouchers.

POLICE TAX.

By law the police tax on each county is appropriated for the benefit of the public schools of each county; and as this is a subject of such general interest, we give the result of our county, as taken from our reports:

Some times I think that we merchants are a pretty clever class of people, and then again I think well, we are certainly the most charitable and liberal family on record. Why, some of us are actually trying to make you feel that we are going to give you goods. Well, isn't that too bad. Don't you think that a fellow is mean to himself to say things which he knows he is not going to do; that is, unless he has spoken to some one else to assume his responsibilities after he leaves his country. We would be powerful glad to have you call and see how cheap we are selling things.

BACON'S SPEECH FOR GENERAL BLACK.

A Magnificent Testimonial to an Illinois Soldier.

CINCINNATI, O., July 12.—[Special.]—The Georgia delegation arrived here this evening, on their way home. They will arrive in Atlanta to-morrow morning. The following is the speech of Mr. Bacon, putting in nomination General Black:

"Will they do it?"
"That is a hard question, young man. Re member that Tammany never bolts, though. Remember that."

The commissioner was busy getting the braces ready for their train, which was to start for New York at five o'clock, and was not communicative.

Senator Grady would say nothing except that Cleveland being nominated, that settled it. Tammany would not bolt, for "we are democrats," he said, "but we may not work very hard for success," he added with a smile. Mr. Mooney looked moodily out of the window at the various clubs that were marching by. When the New York crowd democracy filed by with Cleveland banners flying, he turned away with a look of disgust and muttered something about their need all the enthusiasm they could muster.

The Tammany host; Senator Grady, Kelly's secretary; Mr. Mooney, Mr. Callicott, John J. Gorman, old Captain Rynder and half a dozen others. None of the party had much to say. Commissioner Brennan once ventured to remark that he wished he had a sedative, his nerves were unstrung. The giddy joke scarcely raised a smile.

A TALK WITH KELLY.

The reporter got near enough to the baffled chieftain to ask him how he felt over the nomination. He smiled in a forced way and replied that of course everybody knew he was not pleased, but added quickly, "Nobody must understand from that that I do not want Governor Cleveland to succeed. There is no suggestion of a bolt in what I may say or what I may think. Mr. Cleveland was not my choice, but he is the nominee, and I hope democrats everywhere will support him."

"Can he carry New York?"
"That remains to be seen. Had I not feared that he could not, I should not have opposed his nomination."

Just then a score or more of ladies were ushered into the parlors, and for half an hour Mr. Kelly held a kind of levee. In the presence of beauty he seemed to forget his disappointment and chagrin, and nothing could exceed the courtesy with which he entertained his fair visitors.

Commissioner Brennan, when asked his opinion, gave a mighty grunt and said that Cleveland would come down to Harlem river with 40,000 majority against him, and that Tammany would be expected to wipe that out as usual.

"Will they do it?"
"That is a hard question, young man. Re member that Tammany never bolts, though. Remember that."

THE BUTLER HEADQUARTERS.

The Butler headquarters were almost as much besieged as Kelly's. A dense throng banged at his doors, but the trusty guards protected the port. Neddy was adusted except personal friends. About one o'clock Butler emerged, and forcing a passage through the crowd, vanished into Kelly's parlor, and had a private conference of over half an hour. Then he slipped back to his own quarters. On the way he was raidied by hungry reporters, but all that he said was that Cleveland could not carry Massachusetts. As nobody expects that he can, this fulminated Butler's was not alarming to Cleveland's friends.

THE HENDRICKS ACCEPTS

AND MAKES A THRILLING SPEECH FOR THE TICKET.

The Great Indiana Delegation Protests the Convictions of His Masters, and Calls Upon the People to Reconsider Their Political Affiliations—Speech of Mr. McDonald.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 12.—A largely attended democratic meeting, to ratify the nominations of Cleveland and Hendricks, was held here to-night. Hendricks and McDonald were escorted to the place of assembly by a new political organization, known as the "new administration." The meeting was called to order by Austin H. Brown, and Wm. H. English was made chairman. Mr. Hendricks was received with a burst of genuine enthusiasm, which seemed to inspire him much, but you can bet he will draw out every democratic vote. It is the best nomination, in my judgment, that could have been made, with Randall out of the fight.

Governor Abbott, of New Jersey, simply re-marked:

"With Cleveland, New Jersey is safe."

Governor Tom Waller said: "You can put Connecticut down for Cleveland, sure."

The governor's face beamed like a pony and his great voice could be heard filling the corridors far above the din and confusion.

The Inter-Ocean, the leading republican organ of Chicago, pays the following compliment to the delegation:

"With Cleveland, New York is safe."

The reporter got near enough to the baffled chieftain to ask him how he felt over the nomination. He smiled in a forced way and replied that of course everybody knew he was not pleased, but added quickly, "Nobody must understand from that that I do not want Governor Cleveland to succeed. There is no suggestion of a bolt in what I may say or what I may think. Mr. Cleveland was not my choice, but he is the nominee, and I hope democrats everywhere will support him."

In Harmony Grove Henry Donnellson (colored) got his house burned down a few nights ago, and his children came very near perishing in the flames. They were saved and alone at the time.

Captain J. B. Martin, a well known citizen of Carroll county, has three very industrious and peaceful homes that are raising 99 little helpless chicks. The first has 25, the second 28, and the third 29.

Some weeks before last Miss Minnie Fenn one of Dooly's charming ladies came to Vienna on a visit to some of her friends, and during the week she claimed to be making preparations to go to the picnic at Drayton last Saturday, but her friend, Mr. Willie Powell, of Hawkinsville, drove up Saturday morning, and securing leave from the ordinary, Judge J. D. Hargrave, who, about 11 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. F. S. Davies, joined their hands and hearts in matrimony. Miss Davies and Miss Eva Holmes witnessed the ceremony.

In Franklin county a group of workmen, seeing a dark cloud approaching, quickly left their places in the field, mounted their horses and rode pell-mell across the house, when a sudden glittering glow of lightning struck among them as they rode abreast. The party consisted of Mr. Thomas Payne, Willie Conley and another man. Ahead of this party about thirty yards, rode Mr. James Conley, who looked back and first saw the party all start, and on looking back a second time they were all prostrated on the ground. It was found that Willie Conley, a lad of nineteen years, was killed, and the horse he rode, while Mr. Payne's horse was shot off his foot and his horse dead under him. The other man and his horse escaped unharmed.

Publishing New Era. I will tell about a certain incident in the life of a young man who is a lay-deaconary man. The Americans were fired at Keowee river, now in Pickens county, south Carolina, and one fort, Ninety-Six, surrendered, in which there were two hundred men. The white Indian woman carried a dispatch from General James Nicholson, living near Rockville in Howard county, was bitten by what is termed a "Cotton Mouth" moccasin. His knapsack contained a fang a few inches above the hoof of the left fore leg. The wound bled profusely for a few minutes, then ceased, when the unconscious creature was thrown into the greatest pain, apparently died in one hour's time.

THE CONSTITUTION,

ATLANTA, JULY 13, 1884.

INDICATIONS at 1 a. m. for south Atlantic states: Fair weather, southwest to northwest winds, and stationary temperature.

The citizens of Fulton county have lynched the wretched colored criminal whose crime caused so much indignation. The governor placed the responsibility of protecting the prisoner upon the city. The story will be found fully detailed elsewhere.

The Paris correspondent of the American Register says it is reported that the Bartholdi statue was originally destined, under the name of "Progress," for the Suez canal, but being refused by the promoters of the canal, it was sold as a lot, at a reduced price, to the Franco-American union.

EARL GRANVILLE, foreign secretary of state, has sent a further note to Mr. West British minister at Washington, directing him to ask if advantageous terms are given to Cuba for the admission of Cuban products into America; that the products of the British colonies in the West Indies are placed on the same footing.

CANTON JACKSON captures the first county in the congressional race by a decisive majority after a close and prolonged contest with Colonel Hammond. The two candidates appeared in joint discussion three days before the primaries were held, and the friends of each canvassed the entire county. The attempt to beat Jackson by an assault on his personal character, put before the people after he had left the county, failed as it ought to have failed miserably. It will hardly be tried in another county, and the campaign may be expected to take higher ground.

CLEVELAND AND TAMMANY.

In the democratic convention, which has just completed its work, one of the most conspicuous delegates was a young Tammanyite named Grady. As General Bragg, of Wisconsin, says, Grady has a very good name, but in all other respects he seems to represent a concern that honest democrats have found to be obnoxious. As a man with a glib tongue, Grady was put forward to advocate the cause of John Kelly on the floor of the convention. He was a very willing advocate, too, having excellent reasons apart from his allegiance to the Tammany leas, for opposing the nomination of Cleveland.

Those who have studied the course of events know that the attitude which Mr. Cleveland, as governor of New York, has maintained towards Tammany and its bosses has been the means, as much anything else, of commanding him to the favorable attention of the democratic party. The history of his difficulty with Kelly and Grady may be of some interest now. Grady, it should be borne in mind, is an ardent Tammanyite, a glib and willing tool of John Kelly. He was a member of the state senate in New York in 1882 and 1883, and it is said that there was not a more depraved politician in that body. His position was notorious. He was "on the make," as the phrase is, and he was ready, with his glib-tongue, to advocate any measure provided he had been retained for that purpose. He opposed the democratic majority and the democratic governor in every effort they made in the direction of reform, but he was always ready to lobby or vote for a piece of jobbery. His attitude was so notorious and his efforts so flagrant that at last Governor Cleveland wrote a private letter to John Kelly, in regard to the matter. This letter was ridiculed at the time by the lobbyists and corruptionists, for Kelly, believing that he had an opportunity to cripple the democratic executive, caused it to be printed in the newspapers. When Grady was seeking re-election in the fall of 1883, Governor Cleveland wrote to John Kelly as follows:

KELLY, BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA, October 23, 1883.—My dear Sir—Your desire to have a written invitation that I write this, I have determined to do so, however, because I see no reason why I should not be entirely frank with you. I am anxious that Mr. Grady should not be returned to the next senate. I do not wish to conceal the fact that my personal comfort and satisfaction are involved in this matter. But I know that good legislation, based upon a pure desire to promote the interests of the people and the improvement of legislative methods, are also deeply involved. I forbear to write in detail of the other considerations having relation to the welfare of the party and the approval to be secured by a change for the better in the character of its representatives. These things will occur to you without suggestion from me. Yours very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

In turning this letter over to the newspapers, Kelly saw fit to make a vile personal attack on the governor, but a careful reading will show that it is just such a letter as would emanate from a man having a sincere desire to purify the party and to secure honest legislation. It is an honest letter written by an honest man, written for the good of the public service as well as for the benefit of the democratic party. If John Kelly had been as wise as he is shrewd, he would have seen that latter something of more importance than mere personal objection to his tool, Grady. He would have seen in it something of the spirit of reform which has risen in revolt against republican corruption; he would have seen in it a demand for pure legislation, and he would have made haste to second the efforts of an honest governor. But Tammany had other ends in view. It united all its forces in opposition to Cleveland, and Grady was sent to Chicago in order that he might have an opportunity to abuse the distinguished opponent of the methods by which the bosses perpetuate their power.

As our readers know, the opposition of Kelly, and Grady, and Tammany was in vain. The question now is, what is to be the attitude of Tammany toward the democratic ticket? A great many people are of the opinion that this is a question of paramount importance; but we are inclined to believe that its importance has been greatly exaggerated. We are inclined to believe in fine that Tammany will become tractable only when Kelly discovers that there is a determination to ignore him. It is claimed that the democratic party cannot get along without him; it has been demonstrated on the other hand that it cannot get along with him, and the dilemma affords an excellent opportunity for solving a serious problem. There is a comfortable seat between the horns.

THE DOUBTFUL STATES.

The confidence of the republicans in the election of Mr. Blaine is of the blind-faith order; for there is nothing in the present condition of the party or in its statistical position to justify confidence or even a belief in a fighting chance. We do not care to discuss now its divisions and defections; we propose to show what the doubtful states have done in the voting line in the past four years. We give, first, the presidential vote of 1880.

A repetition of the vote of 1880 would elect Blaine, as it elected Garfield; but in 1882 a different result occurred, as the following table shows:

COMMENCEMENT WEEK.

A season of rare gayety.—The Progress of the University.
ATLANTA, Ga., July 12.—[Special.]—Atlanta is in its gayest season, and is decked in holiday attire. Every train that arrives brings a crowd. The commencement exercises next week will be the largest and best attended the State university has known in years. There are more visitors in the city-right than has been known since the early days of the institution on Saturday before commencement Sunday, and the crowd is constantly swelling.

A BRILLIANT WEEK AHEAD.

The promise for a brilliant, social and general week is most favorable. A society queen said this afternoon that the young people were never in better spirits, and anticipated a series of the gayest were about three young ladies to open the social world in anticipation. A number of the reception tendered the City University on Monday evening by Alderman Hines, the evening the class met at Cobham, on Tuesday evening the class met at his residence in the campus, and the junior class at Dempsey's opera house on Wednesday evening the same day at the theater.

The reception tendered by Professor Clegg and Mr. H. C. White to the graduating class last night at the Hotel Cobham, on Peachtree avenue, was a happy prelude to the festive occasion.

THE TRUSTEES.

The board of trustees held its annual meeting to-day. Sixteen members were present. J. J. Gresham presided. The meeting was one of unusual interest, harmonious in details. The following resolutions were adopted: W. A. Whitton, Columbia; B. P. Melvin, Pope Barron, Athens. The board sent $1,000 to the branch colleges at Columbus, the Atlanta and Milledgeville. The pressure on the board for it to admit the delegations from colleges to represent the annual meeting made eloquent appeals before the board, and some advocates. In the board Messrs. Hammond, of Atlanta; Key, of Columbus; Dr. Clegg, of Milledgeville; C. H. Crawford, of Millington, did good service in promoting the interests of their charges. A motion was made in branch college at Thomasville, J. Hooper Alexander resigned, to be filled Monday.

THE COMMENCEMENT OPENED.

The commencement exercises formally opened the session with the class meeting exercises. At five o'clock a large crowd gathered in the historic oak opposite the chapel to witness these interesting exercises. The class occupied seats on a knoll. The audience was seated just below, the board occupying the floor above. The speakers were Bishops Pierce and Beckwith, the venerable chancellor Dr. Mell, Major Lamar Cobb and other prominent personages. The following speakers addressed the assembly: Dr. Clegg, orator; John D. McElroy, Atlanta historian; R. A. Crawford, Athens historian; Dr. Clegg, president of the college; the class assembled around the piano, and sang an original song, after which three cheers were given for the class of seventy-four and the crowd dispersed.

CONDITION OF THE UNIVERSITY.

Dr. Mell said that the university was in a prosperous and healthy condition, that the two hundred and fifty young men were the largest attendance the college has ever known under its present management, that they are specially preparing for proficiency and morality. He regards the approaching exercises as the best the university has ever had.

The champion debate between the Phi Kappa and the Demosthenes societies, presided over by the choice of president by popular vote, is preferable to an election by electoral college.

ALBANY, Ga., July 12.—[Special.]—Williams, Clay county, F. D. Pollock, Rome; Georgia; E. F. Hinton, Macon; Georgia.

Negative.—Phi Kappa.—J. B. Browne, Columbus, Georgia; Dr. W. H. Newman, Newnan, Georgia; R. H. Johnson, Mississippi.

Opening Ball in Gainesville.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 12.—[Special.]—The Hudson house gave its opening ball last night. Invitations were extended to the guests of New Holland, and to the Arlington, and each sent its fairest delegation. Costumes were faultless. Amongst them was Miss Anna Wingate, the royal purple of Miss Josephine Poe, the cosmic pink of Miss Jean Cochrane, the cardinal red of Miss Anna Cravath, the emerald green of Miss Alice Dunn, and the blue of Miss Anna. All of Atlanta, and all of Georgia, all of Atlanta, were in attendance. After having spent a most enjoyable evening the merry party adjourned to the hotel for a few hours, preceding the opening ball of the Hudson the next of the season.

The Crown Cotton Mills.

DAVISON, Ga., July 12.—The cornerstone of the Crown cotton mills was laid Thursday, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. J. K. Bunn and her sister, Miss Alice Dunn, of Atlanta, placed the first two bricks, and deposited a casket containing the remains of their mother, in the corner stone. Various other documents and a number of coins were deposited by persons present. More than half a million dollars of masonry are at work on the main building, which is to be three stories high, and have capacity for 1,000 hands. The superintendant is pushing the work forward rapidly and successfully. We learn that the machinery is to be supplied by the best firms in America, power spindles, and all the machinery with latest improvements.

A Bainbridge Sensation.

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., July 12.—A genuine sensation was gotten up here yesterday evening. A negro boy getting up evens found a knapsack lying on the east bank of the river a mile from town with a note pinned to it which read: "Dear late, I am going, being bound for the South, and will return to the West." The dark saw a dead body lying just below the post and barrels hovering over him, and he took the gun and started running. When he reached his discoveries, quite a party went down to investigate the matter. The dead body turned out to be that of a large otter. The mystery of the note and handkerchief is unexplained.

Slipped His Footbold.

MARISTTA, Ga., July 12.—[Special.]—Last Thursday the 7:15 p.m. train was pulling out from this place a man by the name of McDonald attempted board it while it was in motion. He stepped upon a coupling pin that was lying upon the steps. It threw him between the cars, and he hit his head so forcibly and terribly cutting the fingers of one of his hands. The train went off without him, and he was carried to the hospital, where he received the best medical attention. McDonald was heard to say that he was a railroad man, but did not mention what road he was connected with.

The Cobb County Sunday School.

MARISTTA, Ga., July 12.—[Special.]—The annual session of the Cobb County Sunday school was opened yesterday by Mr. J. C. Courtney, of Atlanta, was present and delivered an address. With singing exercises and a brief sermon, every one enjoyed the exercises.

A Convict shot and Killed.

LEXINGTON, Ga., July 12.—[Special.]—A convict who was shot and killed by the guard while he was shot and killed by the guard. Convict was held an inquest and the verdict of the jury was that he was killed by the guard. Little Florence, daughter of Mr. J. P. Faust, died Thursday night at 9 o'clock a.m.

A Little Girl Drowned.

ALPHARETTA, Ga., July 12.—[Special.]—Yesterday evening, as two little children of Mr. Robert Hemmings were returning home from school, soon after a heavy rain, which had caused a small stream to overflow the banks, the child fell from the bank, and was drowned. The child was a daughter, and was drowned; the other got out. The body of the little girl was found some distance below, buoyed up.

Sisters from Dooley.

MONTGOMERY, Ga., July 12.—[Special.]—Our neighboring county, Dooley, has two sisters that can compare, in size, to any other two in the state. They always come to town in a wagon; a buggy is too small to hold them.

STATE SPECIALS CONDENSED.

Walter Marshall has bought out C. G. Moore's interest in the Crawford News-Monday.

Professor Tom Edwards' school has been employed as teacher in Means high school, Atlanta.

The First Light Infantry left Atlanta last night.

The electric fire alarm apparatus has arrived in the city and will be placed in position next week.

The Cherokee artillery company, of Rome, which served with distinction during the war, is about to be reorganized.

FARMS AND FARMERS.

SHORT TALKS WITH FARMERS ON FARM TOPICS.

The Harvester.—Farm Animal Medicine Chest.—For Water for Gardens—Managing a Setting House—History of Alfalfa—Care of Stocking Cots—Preventive Against Worms, &c.

The Harvester.

Old Farmer Lee leaned on his plow, And wiped the sweat from his sunburned brow, While slowly his eyes followed the setting sun. Turned his head and said: "The day is gone, Finished slack and what's the gain? Work I have done in shine and sain: Worked when my limbs were stiff and sore; Worked when my hands could work no more. And now that the end of my long life nears What have I learned but grief and tears?"

Oppressor is the golden grain and sheaves?

Nothing I find but withered leaves,

Leaves and tares, rot and rust,

With the blossoms all blid under the dust,

But god knows best, when life is done;

Worked when my hands could work no more.

And now that the end of my long life nears

What have I learned but grief and tears?"

FARM ANIMAL MEDICINE CHEST.—Professor Brown, a veterinary authority highly esteemed in England, in a late contribution to the Journal of the royal agricultural society, gives the following alphabetical list of remedies for home treatment of farm animals. Save it, it will be convenient for references:

Acetone.—Tincture (Fleming's) action sedative; allays fever, externally relieves pain.

Doses: horse and ox, ten to thirty drops; sheep, five to ten; goat and water in proportion of a tablespoonful to each drop of medicament. For a lotion, one use a tablespoonful of the tincture, plus a pint of water.

Alcohol.—In the form of whisky, or brandy, or strong beer is useful for cases in which the system requires to be temporarily relieved.

Doses: horse or ox, four to six drachms.

Ammonia Liniment.—Made by adding a strong solution of ammonia and oil of turpentine, an eighth part, to soap liniment. A pint bottle, carefully stoppered, should be kept at hand.

The liniment is useful as an application for sore throat, and for all cases in which an oil of liniment is necessary.

Antiseptic.—A poultice of lime, or gypsum, a pint of water, and a few drops of oil of lavender.

Antiseptic Liniment.—Made by adding a strong solution of ammonia and oil of turpentine, an eighth part, to soap liniment.

A poultice of lime, or gypsum, a pint of water, and a few drops of oil of lavender.

Antiseptic Poultice.—A poultice of lime, or gypsum, a pint of water, and a few drops of oil of lavender.

Antiseptic Salve.—A poultice of lime, or gypsum, a pint of water, and a few drops of oil of lavender.
